"The Cube Guys" are definitely the pioneers of the genre latin-fidget that has 'broken' clubs through this year. Already in 2005, with remix of "Electro", they mix latin rhythms with electronic sounds. From that moment their special touch has made luck to different djs and producers, in fact we can't imagine tracks like "ELECTRO", "I NEED SOMEONE" or "LOST" without their version. In recent days, after they were guests on RELEASE YOURSELF (Radioshow by ROGER SANCHEZ), they were elected winners of Beatport Contest for YELLO.

What means your name "The Cube Guys"? Why this choice?

Cube our studio's name, and we are the Guys of that place! Simple!

How can you describe your sound?

We usually define it 'global house'... We mean that we like to play track from vocals, pass thru tribal, arriving to progressive-tech... everything mixed like a musical journey.

What, outside the dance music, has influenced your productions the most?

From Quincy Jones and Brian Eno, to Pink Floyd and Depeche Mode, till David Morales and Stock Aitken & Waterman...

Explain us how was the Beatport Contest of YELLO.

So strange. We made that remix of 'Bostich' 6 months ago, with the original cuts and samples voices, just to play it as bootleg during our sets all around the world. One day we saw that Beatport publishes a competition about Yello's, so we decided to replace our samples with official cuts and... people vote that!

You have just returned from tour in Canada/Mexico, how did it go?

Amazing! Canadian people is always so hot, imagine when they move to hot Mexico!

We were there for the Bpm Festival, the new winter's clubbers gathering in south america! It's the first time at Bpm and the vibe was incredible over there, so professional and so emotional. After that we came back to Montreal to spin at Circus Afterhours... simply one of the best afterhours on the planet!

What do you think of your country (ITALY) about music, clubs and more?

We love Italy for food of course! The clubs reality is good, maybe a bit too much fashion for our sound, that's why we love to move away from our country.

A big support for all italian new producers, many young guys are so talented!

What do you think about new technology in your work?

Very important, but not fundamental. Regard studio, some guys still produce huge tracks with laptops only, because the main idea and the brain are the only things to have with you!

Regard clubs, we still prefer to play with cds, 'cause they give 'movement' and human feelings to our dj sets.

Do you have any hobbies outside music?

Different passions and hobbies... from technology to clothings, from expensive watches to wines, from cars to bicycles... sometimes is needed to fly away from music!

News for future?

We had recently finish an official remix of 'Fantastic Voyage' for the big Coolio, now we are working on another remix for David Vendetta, and then we'll be ready to put the finishes touches to our next new singles, ready for the Winter Music Conference in Miami... every year Miami is a lucky place for us and our music!
