German production duo Plastik Funk are on a roll. Last month, they set a new standard for themselves with the release of "Here We Go," where they successfully switched up their style to emulate melodic house through a groovy underground lens. This week they've followed up with another infectious track entitled "Love & Affection," out once again with the help of Armada Deep.

With a piano chord progression that almost mimics an old Avicii record, there is a carefree nature to "Love & Affection." From the guys' point of view, it's a track that emulates the butterflies from a first love, with energetic ambition and hope.

"Love & Affection" is available to stream or download via multiple resources.
