come in at drop out at the right moments, filling the mind with nothing but quality, vocal-driven tech-inspired music. Mental spaces like this is what Dead Space is, in part, known for creating, his extensive discography and past label history making this element evident. "Player Hater's Ball" is the go-to single to get a crowd grooving at a moments notice.

Dead Space isn't new or unknown to the dance music space. Mau5trap, Desert Hearts, Repopulate Mars, and Toolroom all have sought after and signed his music, establishing his presence in the scene and helping him build an audience. Having gained the support of Mark Knight, Erick Morillo, and Gorgon City over the years, Dead Space continues his upward trajectory smoothly with more music goodies to come in good time.
