The term Sunday funday was redefined on March 8th for owner of Nervous Records, Mike Nervous' birthday bash at Output.

I first time I witnessed Cocodrills was on The Groove Cruise as the sun was rising over the ocean- now that's pretty hard to beat but their set at Output just might have tied. Of course NYC/ NJ locals that experienced this top of the pool deck phenomenon came out to Output and i'm not gonna lie- we ran that dance floor.

Joe Grossman warmed the room up with deep funky vibes, playing Kill Frenzy's dirty little track "No Panties" released on Vonstroke's Dirtybird label.

Cocodrills delivered groovy tech- house tracks such as "Need That Something" produced by Christian Nielson and "Raw Deal" by Lowboys & BDJ & Markomas.

Pridef and Adam Cruz dropped more incredible tech- house records with the funkiest baselines like "Pusher" by Berlin- based producer Mark Henning who has been in the biz for over a decade and "Gorilla" produced by the insanely talented Belgian producer Kill Frenzy. Dark, Belgian tech- house is perfect for a venue like Output. All was right in the world when this track flooded the room:

I would love to get my hands on Cocodrills' music library, they were dishing out track after track of that underground tech- house sound we just can't stop grooving to. Records such as "K15 (Detlef Remix)" produced by Carlos Sanchez and trippy vocals were oozing from the speakers with the track "Games" from Spanish producer German Brigante.

Straight up house music from Phil Weeks titled "Disco Inferno," and this hot track released on Jamie Jones' & Lee Foss' label, Hot Creations, "Everytime I See You" produced by Nathan Barato featuring Room 303:

At some point in the night I wandered down into the Panther room and a well deserved honorable mention goes to Connie Yin. She started off her epic set with Moscoman's "Fernandez" and my mind melted a bit when I heard a mysteriously, wicked techno track. Turns out it's "The Fire" by Siopis, straight from the Conster's mouth.

Back to the main stage, Cocodrills played the deep house remix from the brilliant Shiba San of Breach's record "The Key" featuring vocals from the infamous Kelis and a badass tech track from Shocknorte titled "Dubberman". Let the Cocodrills saga continue- because we want more.
